QUEEN'S WINS FROM MCGILL IN INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATE CHAMPIONSHIP FOR TRICOLOR

KINGSTON USED AUTHORITATIVE REFERENCES

Queen's Debaters Show Vastly Superior Preparation and Argument—Conclusive Evidence of Ireland's Right to Home Rule—McGill Utterly Outclassed

The long looked for event of the Queen's—McGill debate took place last night at the Union. An audience which filled the hall to capacity listened with unabated interest to the different speakers and gave each a fair share of applause, which showed their appreciation. We can safely say that upon the whole a more interesting debate was never listened to.

The subject was "Resolved that Home Rule with representation at Westminster should be granted to Ireland." The Queen's representatives, Messrs. O. H. Steer and J. R. Tuttle, defended the affirmative side of the argument, whilst the McGill team, Messrs. R. R. Holland and W. E. G. Murray maintained the negative. The choice of subject and sides had fallen by lot to Queen's, who chose the affirmative side.

Acting as chairman, Mr. N. Fineberg, M.A., opened the meeting with a few well chosen remarks in which he introduced the speakers of the evening and explained the system arranged for the intercollegiate debating contests.

Mr. Steer was the first speaker for the Affirmative. He pointed out that local affairs are best conducted along local lines. The present condition of affairs in England is an anomaly in government, where there is one body doing the work that in countries like Germany and the United States requires many. Home Rule, said the speaker, is a necessary step for the peace and good will of Imperial affairs. Moreover, there is at present a distinct national consciousness which like individual patriotism will remain latent until trampled upon or excited. He traced the history of Ireland from the 18th century to the present time, in which he showed how the British in the past had treated the Irish with flagrant injustice and how the policy adopted by the British statesmen for the last 30 years was contended as a salve for past injury. But there Irish admittedly misgoverned by legislation brought about by corruption doesn't satisfy them and what they now demand is to control their own affairs and attend to them themselves, to be given the rights and privileges of self-government which England has seen fit to grant to the Dutch in South Africa, to the Canadians in Canada and elsewhere. He showed very conclusively that the Irish have developed through political and economic responsibilities and are now quite capable to rule themselves. For by the local Government Act of 1898, which gave them the control over financial affairs, taxation in Ireland was reduced to 3d in the Pound Sterling, whereas the Imperial Taxation had increased 10 per cent.

On the ground of expediency, as well as on the ground of justice and practicability, Home Rule should be granted the Irish. For there is nothing worse than national consciousness when once aroused. It was national consciousness which ultimately drove the Austrians out of Italy and Germany, and separated the dual monarchy of Austria-Hungary. From the British point of view the very fact that at the present moment the British Parliament was so overwhelmingly overcrowded with legislation, was a strong argument in favor of allowing Irish affairs to be taken care of by an Irish Parliament in Dublin, besides the presence of Nationalists in the British House assures the passing of legislation; not on the intrinsic merits of the measure, use and often of measures which the majority of constituents do not favor. This very fact has a very bad and demoralizing effect on legislative measures. Owing to the obstructive tactics adopted by dissatisfied Irish members there has rendered necessary the use of the closure, which may in the hands of unscrupulous men become a tool of the worst sort of despotic tyranny.

Finally, it was in the benefit of Britain herself to grant Home Rule to the Irish, for a discontented nation is a menace to the entity of the Empire as a whole, as Napoleon so often said. In conclusion, by granting Home Rule, Britain would turn a source of weakness into a tower of strength from a discontented to a contented.

LAVAL GOES DOWN TO OVERWHELMING DEFEAT BEFORE OTTAWA COLLEGE

PURPLE & WHITE JUST ESCAPES WHITEWASHING

McGill Will Now Have to Play Home and Home Games
With Ottawa College for Title of Intercollegiate Championship of Canada

OTTAWA COLLEGE 13; LAVAL 1.
LATE SPECIAL

The Laval-Ottawa College game was played last night in Ottawa with the anticipated result, only no one expected that Ottawa would win by the overwhelming score of 13-1.

The game was fairly good in the first half, but in the second period Laval faded. Their defense was very loose and their forwards slow, College playing rings around them. The game on the whole was a poor exhibition and the feeling is prevalent in Ottawa that McGill is in a fair way to win out in the finals.

Laurie Roberts, who was at the game, interviewed Father Stanton, who seemed to consider next Tuesday and Friday the best dates for the two final home and home games, the first game being played in Ottawa.

"Pud" Argue, on being called up, said that an excursion would certainly be run to Ottawa for the occasion and it is hoped that a large and leather-lunged crowd of rooters will accompany the team. Remember goals count now and the team will need all the support they can get.

The following wire was received at the Daily Office from the popular manager of the team:

"Ottawa, 12.05 a. m., 24th Feb.

"McGill play in Ottawa Tuesday and in Montreal Friday.

"Score 13-1 for Ottawa.

BY STRIKING ADDRESS
AT HISTORICAL CLUB

On Thursday night the Historical Club held their Annual Old Members' Night. There were quite a number of old members there, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The feature of the evening was a paper by Mr. Klein, President of the Harvard Historical Club. His subject was 'Modern Methods of Historical Research,' and in an extremely interesting and entertaining paper, Mr. Klein brought forward some original and useful ideas. The speaker prefaced his paper with an account of the relations which existed between McGill and Harvard and he expressed the hope that a man might be sent from McGill to Harvard. According to the usual methods a speaker usually digs out some obscure subject, and sends the audience to sleep, but Mr. Klein certainly departed from the beaten track in this. The teacher's aims should be three in number, (1) to arouse interest, (2) to give the guiding facts of history, (3) to encourage habits of research. Mr. Klein then discussed the last phase under two heads, the method of study and the nature and results of the work. The beauty of the study of history is that no definite conclusions need to be reached. In fact too definite conclusions are to be avoided. Medical men may quarrel as to the treatment of a disease but something has to be done, in history, however, this is not the case. Then again the tendency to periodize is to be avoided. It is impossible to isolate a single fact and consider it as the turning point in a particular nation's life. A third fault is the tendency to be catastrophic—too hasty jumping at conclusions is to be avoided and this was illustrated by some amusing experiences of the speaker. Under the next head—the nature and result of the work—too early concentration was to be shunned. First lay the foundations on general history and when one has a grasp of that, then it is time to concentrate on some particular branch. The general knowledge cannot be satisfactorily crammed up but must be slowly accumulated. One should not be content with superficial causes but the underlying one should be dug out. For instance few people know that the Armada was tied up for a year by an obscure group of English financiers. One man says that it is the shape of the plow which determines a characteristics of life of nations. Another says it is the soil. In conclusion, the speaker pointed out that there is a need of more co-operative work of students and of more organizations. Dr. Wells, as originator of the scheme of exchange between colleges, then arose and expressed his personal appreciation of Mr. Klein's paper.

Dr. Friar expressed the regrets of Dr. Colby, the oldest member, at not being present, and welcomed the old members, each of whom was prevailed on to address the Club, including Dr. Nutter, Professor Ludlow, Mr. Williams, Professor Rose, and Messrs. Dewitt, George Currie, A. Wanklyn and Ritchie Donald. Refreshments were then served in the reading room of the hall.

tented and happy people and the oft-repeated interference in British diplomacy which was accentuated by the hatred transmitted to their children, and thereby intensified, anti-British sentiment would be completely done away with and the ties which bind the Empire together would be strengthened.

Mr. Holland then arose to reply to the last speaker. He showed the complete vagueness that enshrouded the term—Imperial Federation—and criticized the Affirmative for not outlining any definite and practical scheme of Home Rule which could be reconciled to British Imperialism.

He took a rapid survey of the past history and showed that from the very start it had been the premeditated policy of British statesmen from the time of Henry VIII up to the present to impress English civilization upon the somewhat primitive and backward development of the Irish tribal units. From this point of view it seemed rather illogical to undo the work of English statesmen by granting Home Rule to Ireland. The speaker drew an analogy of the condition in 1783 when the Irish raised volunteers with the avowed purpose of helping the English against the French when their real aim was to force Home Rule from the hard-pressed English government. So today the Irish members having the balance of power are squeezing Home Rule from the Liberals who would never think of granting them their demands were it not for the fact that their political existence depended on the support of the Irish members. He showed that Ireland had prospered and was therefore content to remain under the rule of the Imperial House but because of moral cowardice they supported the Redmonite party. Furthermore from perusing the history of the Irish it can be seen how they were divided in more ways than any other people on the face of this globe. Home Rule would be a danger to the Empire as was shown by the example of 1783.

Finally Home Rule for Ireland would mean Home Rule all round. A written constitution would have to be drawn up and all difficulties that this involves would be thrown upon the English people.

Mr. J. R. Tuttle for Queen's rose to reply and in the course of his remarks refuted a good many arguments made by the last speaker. He outlined the practical scheme of Irish Home Rule embracing political, commercial and financial matters.

It was shown that the Irish as a whole were clamoring for Home Rule. He supported his statements by well-known authorities. The idea of independence was shown to be ridiculous for the very fact that the Irish need the protection of the British army and navy. The British credit and other privileges and rights which go with British protection would lead them to join in Imperial contribution. The time is now past when there is anything to fear from religious intolerance on the part of the Irish Catholics and the very fact that England has received such warriors as Wellington, Roberts, Kitchener, such Statesmen as Burke and many Governors of Colonies, Admirals and Diplomats is enough to show that the Irish merit more consideration than has been shown them in the past. By granting Home Rule there would be no necessity of a Nationalist party but members would be elected in proportion to population and they would vote on the intrinsic merits of a bill. He showed that the methods of confiscation of eviction and of religious intolerance adopted by the British Government were made worse by financial measures and especially the system of taxation.

The definite plan the speaker suggested was a Parliament in Dublin composed of two Houses. (1) The Upper, elected on property qualification and (2) the Lower to contain members proportional to population.

Mr. Murray took up cudgels on the Negative side of the debate. He pointed out that there existed a fallacious belief that federalism affected only Ireland, but as a matter of fact it would affect the whole Empire. Federation necessitated a constitution which must have clear-cut division between the federal and other units. It is of common knowledge to political scientists that the judiciary has assumed preponderant powers over the legislative body in all federated countries. The solidarity of an Empire depends on the supremacy of Parliament and if a federal system should be instituted it would strike at the root of British strength and would deal the death blow to the Empire. Under a federal system taxation must be increased. But it had been shown that Ireland was unable to stand the strain of her present taxation then Home Rule would aggravate the condition and render the conditions worse. The speaker showed that Home Rule would be an unnecessarily intricate and expensive form of government both for England and for Ireland.

The true panacea for the Irish question was not Home Rule but better civil and political conditions which would free Ireland of Redmond and his satellites. Also the congestion in business that prevailed in the British House would not be much relieved by Home Rule.

Finally the Irish people are content with their lot. They may have been grumbling in the past, and justly so, but England by investing generously by soothing legislation and by principles of British justice had removed all ill-feelings on the part of the Irish, and were it not for the flabby opportunism of the present British statesmen, there would never have been any agitation for Home Rule. It would be fatal to the unity of the Empire, because not being consistent with Imperial unity and not offering any safeguard for the minority, a hostile parliament at Dublin would be a greater danger to England than invasion.

Mr. Steer was allowed a few minutes to sum up his argument.

Upon the request of the Chairman, Judge Leet, who acted in the capacity of judge of the debate, rose to speak. He explained what a difficult position he was in to decide upon such an important topic which was of interest to the whole world. That being in a position of honour, he felt the great responsibility which that position brought. Before giving the decision Judge Leet amused the expectant audience by a few very witty anecdotes, smacking of legal taste. He finally gave his decision awarding the victory to the Affirmative, who won the debate on the number of arguments and on the array of authority they quoted.

The Royal Military College of Canada

There are few national institutions of more value and interest to the country than the Royal Military College of Canada. Notwithstanding this, its object and the work it is accomplishing are not sufficiently understood by the general public.

The College is a Government institution, designed primarily for the purpose of giving instruction in all branches of military science to officers and Cadets of the Canadian Militia. In fact it corresponds to Woolwich and Sandhurst.

The Commandant and military instructors are all officers on the active list of the Imperial army, lent for the purpose, and there is in addition a complete staff of professors for the civil subjects which form such an important part of the College course. Medical attendance is also provided.

Whilst the College is organized on a strictly military basis the cadets receive a practical and scientific training in subjects essential to a sound modern education.

The course includes a thorough grounding in Mathematics, Civil Engineering, Surveying, Physics, Chemistry, French and English.

The strict discipline maintained at the College is one of the most valuable features of the course, and, in addition, the constant practice of gymnastics, drills and outdoor exercise of all kinds, ensures health and excellent physical condition.

Commissions in all branches of the Imperial service and Canadian Permanent force are offered annually.

The diploma of graduation is considered by the authorities conducting the examinations for Dominion Land Surveyor to be equivalent to a university degree, and by the regulations of the Law Society of Ontario, it obtains the same exemptions as a B. A. degree.

The length of the course is three years, in three terms of 9½ months each.

The total cost of the course, including board, uniform, instructional material, and all extras, is about $800.

The annual competitive examination for admission to the College, takes place in May of each year, at the headquarters of the several military districts.

For full particulars regarding this examination, and for any other information, application should be made to the Secretary of the Militia Council, Ottawa, Ont.; or to the Commandant, Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont.

MEDICAL SOCIETY
HEARS INTERESTING
STUDENT PAPERSOver-Crowded Profession a Subject of Discussion

Although the attendance at last night's meeting was somewhat below the usual, the character of the programme made it one of the most successful gatherings held this session.

In an effort to get back more nearly to the real object of the Society, three Student Nights were arranged in order that the members themselves could reach the advantages of preparing and presenting subjects of interest before their fellows. The result was that more students than usual have willingly consented to contribute to the Society's programme.

Last night Mr. D. S. Lewis '12 presented to the Society a case of "Psoas Abscess" its etiology, differential diagnosis, treatment, etc., and demonstrated the condition by pathological specimens. Although brief, the Society showed marked appreciation of the clear, impressive manner in which Mr. Lewis dealt with his subject.

Mr. A. J. Hebert read a paper dealing with the recent severe epidemic of typhoid fever at Shawinigan Falls. The entire summer vacation was spent by Mr. Hebert working in conjunction with other medical men, endeavoring to solve the origin of the disease. The town was subjected to a most thorough investigation as to water and milk supply, sewerage disposal, etc., the result being that the cause was undoubtedly traced to infected water supply. Prompt measures were at once taken to rectify matters both from a hygienic and clinical point of view. Mr.

Hebert's paper was of interest and distinct value.

Messrs. Cleveland and Wolf entertained the audience by piano instrumentals.

Mr. L. L. Derby then reviewed the conditions of the practice of medicine, comparing pioneer days with modern times. He clearly traced the transition of the general practice in homes to the specialist practice in the hospitals of the city. The paper entitled the "Overcrowded Medical Profession" was a rational summing up of what has been and what is likely to be the condition of practice of medicine.

Anxious passenger, waiting for his boat at the end of a pier: "I say, my man, is that boat going up or down?"

Loafer: "Well, gov'nor, I really can't say. She's a leaky old tub, so she may be going down. But then her bilers ain't none too good, so I shouldn't be surprised if she suddenly went up."

PHYSICAL EDUCATION ANNUAL CONVENTION OPENING RECEPTION

DR. TAIT MCKENZIE PRESIDENT

Picturesque Dance Crowning Feature of Splendid Programme

On Thursday evening a reception was held in the Royal Victoria College for the delegates to the Nineteenth Annual Convention of the American Physical Education Association.

The opening address was given by Principal Peterson, who expressed his surprise that this, the nineteenth convention of the association, was the first that had been held in Montreal. The Principal introduced Dr. Tait McKenzie, formerly of McGill, but now of the University of Pennsylvania—the president of the Association. Dr. McKenzie, in his presidential address, spoke on "Constructive Patriotism." In this remarkably comprehensive address, the speaker outlined the history of the movement, which started twenty-seven years ago. The object of the Association was, he said, to raise the standard of physical efficiency in educational gymnastics and athletic pastimes, with the ultimate aim of improving the physical vitality of the nation.

Dr. Luther Halsey Gulick, of the Russell Sage Foundation of New York, followed Dr. Tait McKenzie. Dr. Gulick's address on "The National Significance of Athletic Sports" laid particular stress on the great good that has been accomplished in city schools by systemized sports and games.

Dr. Parmelee, Secretary of the Provincial School Committee, then outlined his scheme for a system of physical training in the schools of Canada.

After short speeches by Professor Dale and Dean Shepherd, the convention enjoyed dancing and musical numbers.

The second part of the programme was more of the nature of an entertainment. Two vocal solos by Miss Panneton were a feature of the evening. The conventioners also had the pleasure of seeing four graceful old English dances by students of the Royal Victoria College. The Gypsy Dance by Miss M. Longworth, Miss Brown, Miss Morrison, Miss Leslie, Miss Chauvin and Miss Oughtred was performed in a very pleasing manner, calling forth much well merited applause.

Miss Panneton then sang exquisitely in French. This charming singer has never been heard to better advantage than on Thursday evening.

The parvane dance was exceeding graceful. It was executed by Miss Ruby Norris, Miss Morrison, Miss McSweeney and Miss Wilder.

The third dance, entitled "Gargaron," was performed by six young ladies who deserve special credit for their proficiency. They were Miss Lawrence, Miss A. Cameron, Miss MacCoun, Miss Reinhardt, Miss Mac-Kenzie, and Miss Hay.

A second vocal solo, also in French, by Miss A. Panneton, met with a thunderous outbreak of applause. This number was the particular feature of the second part of the programme and was greatly appreciated by the audience.

The Minuet, the sixth number on the programme was a splendid exhibition of old fashion dancing and the eight young ladies who took part performed exceedingly well. They were Misses Wilder, Brown, M. Brown, Duff, Ross, Norris, McSweeney, Reinhardt.

The splendid success of the opening reception augurs well for the remainder of the meetings of the Association.

INSTRUCTOR SMITH MAKES PROPHECY

Ewart in the 115 ought to win on the form and speed he has been showing.

Grant can be relied on to put up a good argument even against the two-year champion Garcock, of Queen's and would not surprise me if he was returned a winner.

G. Hughes in the 135, a man I have been relying on to win hands down, has been laid up a week with la grippe, even so I think his chances are still good.

Reggie Armitage in 145, is another unlucky boy. He has not been able to do anything this week on the mat owing to an injury to his arm which he received on Monday night, but I think the rest will help it and he will sure be heard from.

Nat Hodge, in the middleweight, is not in the best condition, not having done anything all winter until two weeks ago, but being naturally strong and husky he ought to do well.

McDougall in the heavyweight while not working at the game this winter at all is always in fair shape and, being a very powerful man with a fair knowledge of the game, he ought to be able to best his man. It seems strange we have lots of the smaller men at the game but don't seem to be able to get the big fellows.

As this sport is established as a yearly intercollegiate event I think that it ought to be supported much more than it has been in the past which would allow for more hours of instruction as two a week are certainly not enough to get the desired results.

A loan fund of $3,000 has been founded at the University of Nebraska. Two-thirds of it is loaned to engineering students.

KING COOK THIRD CROWNED IT STATE

New Titles Conferred Amidst Plaudits of Large Crowd of Loyal Subjects

Thursday night the famous Cook celebration took place in the Union. This year it was a New King Cook who was crowned, Tobin, first lieutenant of the late King being the victim on this occasion. Cook had a new honour bestowed on him, it being the presidency of the new, Chinese Republic.

About a hundred medical freshmen and sophs fell in line for the procession which started at the corner of Sherbrooke Street and Park Avenue. When all was ready the King appeared in his regalia and his five officers, all in their robes, the procession proceeded along Sherbrooke Street, down Dominion Avenue, along St. Catherine Street to Peel, up Peel and along Sherbrooke to the Union, where a banquet was waiting for the King and his subjects.

The banquet hall had been beautifully decorated with banners and bunting, and a throne placed in one corner. One large banner at the end of the hall attracted special attention. It read: "Kow Tow to King Cook III." "Pires of Medicos."

King Cook was at the head of the table, Laing, Vice-President '15 on his right and his five body guards along the head of the table, they being Knowles, Mingie, Roberts, Bayne, and Urquhardt.

At the close of the banquet Mr. Laing proposed the toast to King George. In introducing the new King Mr. Laing said that McGill was greatly indebted to him for he was the man who had persuaded the Duke of Connaught to come to McGill and receive his honorary degree, and also if it had not been for him Princess "Pat" would not have visited Montreal.

A toast was drunk to Tobin as the last before he became King.

The King was moved from the head of the table to his throne where the first Catastrophe took place. The crowning of his insignificant, irrational and inebriated majesty, King Cook III., as the despised ruler of his most faithless and loving subjects. The symbol of sovereignty being superimposed by his Arch-Fiend, The High Priest of the Infernal Regions, G. B. F., T.G.I.P., assisted by the Satanic Princes. High Priest Bayne, having conferred the honours on the King, the King in a few well-chosen words thanked his subjects and sank back on his throne exhausted. While he was recovering Mr. Wolfe gave a piano solo, which was so much appreciated that he had to give several encores.

The King now had conferred on him a new honour—that of the President of the Chinese Republic. During the ceremony Mr. Urquhardt gave a life history of the King, and pointed out what a lover of animals he was and what a fine surgeon he had been, only losing ninety per cent. of his cases.

The King was presented with a very handsome Chop Suey Bowl and Chop Sticks and received his new name—ONLEE WUN LUNG.

Mr. Hartman now gave a selection and the crowd joined in the chorus of several of the popular songs.

Whilst singing "The Mysterious Rag," two of the gentlemen gave a very fine exhibition of the "Turkey Trot."

A great treat was given to his subjects by the King, who played on his banjo. It had been rumoured that he was spending his spare time at the Conservatorium of Music, and we are sure of the fact now. As an encore the King sang his famous song, "I Want to Go To-Morrow."

Mr. McIntyre '13, Mr. Cuillard '14, and Mr. Sutherland '12, spoke a few words in praise of the great affair.

The King by request sang another of his famous songs, "They All Came Home in a Cart."

George Prince of the Cold Meat House was called on for a story, and showed himself a master of the art of fictitious narration.

The rest of the evening was spent in telling stories.

Mr. Martin, President '15, was unable to be present owing to the illness of his mother. Mr. Laing took his place and can be congratulated on the successful carrying out of the programme.

nesday and Wednesday matinee Oliver Goldsmith's classic, "She Stoops to Conquer" will be given. As this play has not been seen in Montreal for many years it should be welcome news to the patrons of His Majesty's Theatre, as an excellent performance is guaranteed beyond doubt, by Miss Horniman's players.

"The Return of the Prodigal" by John Hanken, will be seen for the first time in this city on Thursday evening of next week, and will also be given Friday, Saturday and Saturday matinee. "The Return of the Prodigal" is one of a series of plays with happy endings. It is remarkable for brilliant dialogue and clever character drawing, and is an excellent example of the delicate and dainty writing of St. John Hanken. The prodigal returns home unexpectedly, shams an accident and illness and by these means prolongs his stay much to the displeasure of his father and brother. No threats will persuade him to leave until after many family complications he agrees to accept a regular allowance.

TO RUN ANOTHER WEEK.

"Bunt Pulls the Strings," the Highland comedy, is to remain all next week at the Princess. Montreal has always been regarded as a week stand for theatrical attractions, and the extended engagement of "Bunt" is another indication of the expansion of the metropolis. "Bunt" is a delightful comedy and the engagement here promises to be very successful. At the Princess "Bunt" will be followed by "The Wedding Trip," a comic opera with music by De Koven.

William Pearce, a candidate for guard on the Minnesota University basketball team was barred by the eligibility committee because he accepted a dollar for winning a race several years ago.

Plans have been made at Yale to construct a new baseball cage which will be large enough to contain a diamond of regulation size. It will be high enough for an ordinary fly and regular field practice.

CANADIAN RAILWAYS

Although Canadian Railways operate through a new country and for the most part thinly settled territory they have been able to improve their lines and the service to such an extent that they are now attracting the attention of travellers all over the continent. A gentleman who recently travelled through Canada using both the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific, has written to one of the railway officials as follows:—

"It occurred to me that the exceptionally good and efficient service that I had was worth calling your attention to, especially in the splendid dining and sleeping cars that you run. I have had occasion to travel on many of the largest and important trunk lines in America, and can say without equivocation that I have never seen better run, or more excellent dining cars."

CIGARETTES

There are very few countries where tobacco of some kind cannot be produced.

But some of this tobacco is scarcely the kind that you would care to smoke.

It's only in dry tropical countries like Turkey, where there are no early autumn frosts, that the best tobacco is grown.

MOGUL Cigarettes are made from the choicest selected Turkish tobaccos and blended by expert tobacco blenders.

MOGULS are sold with cork tips, in boxes of 10 for 15c.
